

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

MISCELLANY.

The American Philosophical Society held at Philadelphia for promoting useful knowledge has the honor to announce that an award of the Henry M. Phillips prize will be made during the year 1912; essays for the same to be in the possession of the society before the first day of January, 1912. The subject upon which essays are to be furnished by competitors is: The treaty-making power of the United States and the methods of its enforcement as affecting the police powers of the states. The essay shall contain not more than one hundred thousand words, excluding notes. Such notes, if any, should be kept separate as an appendix.

The prize for the crowned essay will be $2,000 (two thousand dollars) lawful gold coin of the United States, to be paid as soon as may be after the award. The essays must be sent, addressed to the President of the American Philosophical Society, No. 104 South Fifth Street, Philadelphia. The society invites attention to the following regulations governing the prize:

This fund was presented to the American Philosophical Society held at Philadelphia for promoting useful knowledge in honor of her brother, Honorable Henry M. Phillips, who was a member of the society, by his sister, Miss Emily Phillips, of Philadelphia. In furtherance of the wishes of the donor, the society adopted the following

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

Competitors for the prize shall affix to their essays some motto or name (not the proper name of the author, however), and when the essay is forwarded to the society it shall be accompanied by a sealed envelope, containing, within, the proper name of the author, and, on the outside thereof, the motto or name adopted for the essay.

At a stated meeting of the society all essays received up to January 1, 1912, will be referred to a committee of judges, to consist of five persons, who shall be selected by the society from nomination of ten persons made by the standing committee on the Henry M. Phillips Prize Essay Fund.

Essays may be written in English, French, German, Dutch, Italian, Spanish or Latin; but, if in any language except English, must be accompanied by an English translation of the same.

No treatise or essay shall be entitled to compete for the prize that has been already published or printed, or for which the author has received already any prize, profit, or honor, of any nature whatsoever.

All essays must be type-written on one side of the paper only.

The literary property of such essays shall be in their authors, subject to the right of the society to publish the crowned essay in its transactions or proceedings.